Course Outline and Objectives:

No one can adequately understand American History without understanding the causes, progress, and monumental consequences of the Civil War and Reconstruction. This course will examine American history from the mid 1840s to the late 1870s, with a primary focus on the Civil War. The Civil War as an historical subject is about much more than just a series of battles. In this course, we will focus on issues of race, gender, politics, and economics as well as important military matters. One of the main features of this course is to analyze how the institution of slavery ended in the United States and what that meant (and didn’t mean) for the people who lived under it and for other U.S. institutions. Our goal will be to understand how and why events happened as they did, whether the fundamental conflicts of the war were solved by Reconstruction, and why the Civil War has occupied such an important place in American history and imagination. We will consider the period from different perspectives--North versus South, enlisted soldiers versus commanders, battlefield versus "home front"-- in order to explain events of enormous significance. We will also consider how the Civil War has been remembered, and forgotten, in the over 150 years since it began.

Together we will investigate some of the most interesting questions in American history, and students should be ready to articulate and grapple with ideas (even the controversial and contested ones). Students in this course will learn not only about the subject of the Civil War and Reconstruction, but also about the very process of history. We will also be learning about some of the most exciting digital tools used in historical scholarship.

At the end of the semester, we will aim to have mastered course content, improved historical research skills, improved writing skills, improved group-work skills, and improved oral communication skills. Ask for help with skills and content at any time!

Required Books: (all books are also on 2-hour reserve at Burling Library)
Ambrose Bierce, Civil War Stories (Dover, 1994)
Lisa M. Brady, War upon the Land (U. Ga. Press, 2012) also available online as a JSTOR book
Martha S. Jones, Birthright Citizens (Johns Hopkins, 2018)  also available online through the library catalog
William Craft and Ellen Craft, Running a Thousand Miles for Freedom: The Escape of William and Ellen Craft from Slavery (Dover Thrift, 2003) note: several good versions are available online through the library catalog

E-Reserve articles will be found on PioneerWeb under “Documents” and/or linked in the Library Catalog. Most reserve readings have live links on this syllabus, as well.

Professor Purcell will, from time to time, comment upon class matters and recommend supplemental readings on Twitter using #cwgrinnell20, and she encourages you to do the same. This is intended as a public extension of class discussion, so make sure you view Twitter use for this class as a public form of discourse. You may follow Prof. Purcell @sarahjpurcell, or you may just follow the hashtag. If you have never used Twitter (or have never used it for scholarly purposes), this would be a good time to try it. See Prof. Purcell if you want advice or help in signing up.

Student Responsibilities and Evaluation:

- This course will consist of a mixture of lecture, discussion, small-group work, and other in-class exercises. Students are expected to attend all classes having done the reading and ready to discuss it. Learning is a collaborative process, so speak up and share your ideas with your classmates!

- Engage with the material, and be ready for controversy and difficult subjects. We are studying a series of events full of racism, violence, and disorder of all kinds. Take care of yourself as you learn to engage with difficult topics from the past that are, nonetheless, vital to understanding the world.

One thing to note: some of our primary sources from the nineteenth century contain extremely offensive language. To quote literary scholar Dr. Koritha Mitchell, we are scholars, “not re-enactors, so we need not let the text dictate what we give life to in the classroom (korithamitchell.com).” We can’t pass over all racist, sexist, and other offensive language in our sources—but we always need to remember the historical context. Some slurs are too much. I, for one, do not ever say “the N-word” out loud, and I would prefer no one to do so in this class. If you want to read a quotation out loud with the word in it, just say “N” or “N-word,” instead.

- All assignments must be turned in on time and in good order. Papers must be double-spaced with normal fonts and margins. All citations must be in footnotes or endnotes in University of Chicago Style. Further assignments and guidelines for paper writing will be handed out in class. Extensions (for sickness or other emergency) will not be granted unless they are approved by the instructor ahead of time. Late assignments will receive a deduction of one-half letter grade per day and will not be accepted more than two days late.

- Please familiarize yourself with Student Handbook guidelines about academic honesty at Grinnell, and abide by the rules. Academic honesty is important in all classes, and we will follow its dictates.

- Please check your e-mail and P-web regularly, since I will post items of interest and use e-mail to make class announcements.

- Students in this course will write two 5-page papers based on course materials due on February 24 and April 10. The February paper will have a mandatory revision due on March 12. A shorter memo paper will be due February 3. Each student will work in a team to create a research poster (preceded by a proposal and accompanied by a research journal), which will be showcased at our class poster session on May 1. Other homework, assignments, and digital exercises will be discussed in class and will count towards class participation. There will be an in-class final.

- Poor attendance in class will seriously hurt your grade. You cannot participate if you are not in class. If you must miss class for an activity or athletic event, please arrange your absence with me at least one week in advance. If you need to miss class because you are sick, it is your responsibility to notify Prof. Purcell via email. Prof. Purcell will also grant accommodation for any needed religious absence; please speak to her.

- Please silence your cell phone, and do not check e-mail or text messages during class. Focus on class work. If you are using a laptop or mobile device for class work, please keep your attention focused on class material. I embrace the use of computers and mobile technology in this class, but when you use a device for something other than class work, you distract yourself AND those around you. Don’t do it.

- If you require accommodation for any diagnosed disability, please speak with me during the first week of class. Grinnell College (and this class) provide reasonable accommodations, and I want to lend my support. Students must also arrange their accommodations with Accessibility and Disability Services; contact John Hirschman at 641-269-3710.
Grading:
Grades will be calculated according to the following formula:

Ordeal by Fire memo 5%
5-pp papers 15% each
Research Poster Proposal 5%
Research Reflection Journal 5%
Research Poster 15%
Final Exam 20%
Class Participation 20%

Steady improvement over the course of the semester will be taken into account.
